Dear [Mr. Sample],

You'll most likely be eligible for Medicare when you turn 65. That may mean a change in how your health care costs are covered. Make sure you have help for some of those health-related expenses Medicare doesn't pay for with an AARP Medicare Supplement Insurance Plan, insured by United HealthCare Insurance Company. The sooner you act, the sooner you can get this decision off your mind.

Relax knowing you have added coverage and choices.

Medicare supplement insurance plans pay up to 20% of out-of-pocket costs Medicare Part B doesn't pay, and some plans pay for the Medicare Part A hospital deductible. They also allow you to:

- Visit any doctor and hospital that accepts Medicare
- See specialists without a referral
- Travel with your coverage anywhere you go in the U.S.

If you apply for a Medicare supplement insurance plan within six months after turning 65 and enrolling in Medicare Part B, your acceptance is guaranteed. By law, you can't be turned down for coverage during that time frame.

Pre-existing conditions* won't get in the way.

Apply for an AARP Medicare Supplement Plan when you enroll in Medicare Part B during your open enrollment period at 65 and you don't have to worry about health conditions you have now.

Ask questions over the phone.

Customer Service Representatives are available to provide the answers you're looking for. They're specially trained on AARP Medicare Supplement Insurance Plans.

A few reminders before turning 65.

If you missed earlier mailings, here are some facts on Medicare you should keep in mind.

Generally, you'll be eligible for Medicare at age 65 if:

- You or your spouse have worked in Medicare-covered employment for at least 10 years and
- You're a citizen or permanent resident of the U.S. for at least five years

Overview for Medicare Parts A & B:

Hospital coverage (Part A) helps pay for: Inpatient care in a hospital or nursing facility after a hospital stay, as well as some home health care and hospice care. You'll pay the Part A deductible and applicable co-insurance amounts.

Medical coverage (Part B) helps pay for: Doctors visits, lab tests, and many other medically necessary services not paid by hospital insurance.

How you enroll in Parts A & B:

If you are receiving Social Security, you'll be automatically enrolled in Parts A & B when turning 65. If you don't want Part B coverage, you can go to your Social Security office to refuse it.

If you are not receiving Social Security, you'll need to go to or contact your Social Security office to sign up for Parts A & B.

Remember: Not all expenses are paid for by Medicare.

Part A can still leave you with hospital deductibles and co-payments and Part B only pays about 80% of covered medical services (after the annual deductible is met). An AARP® Medicare Supplement Insurance Plan, insured by United HealthCare Insurance Company, helps lower those out-of-pocket costs not paid for by Medicare.

Dear [Mr. Sample],

Wondering if Medicare will be enough to cover your needs? Looking for an insurance plan that can help? AARP Medicare Supplement Insurance, insured by United HealthCare Insurance Company, may be what you're looking for.

More coverage can mean help paying health care costs.

With Medicare supplement insurance, you have help paying for some of the expenses that Medicare doesn't pay for. It also allows you to:

- Keep or change your doctor and hospital as long as they accept Medicare
- Travel with your coverage anywhere you go in the U.S.
- See specialists without referrals

If you apply for a Medicare supplement insurance plan within six months after turning 65 and enrolling in Medicare Part B, your acceptance is guaranteed. By law, you can't be turned down for coverage during this time frame.

Have your claims considered if you have a medical history.

Apply for an AARP Medicare Supplement Plan when you enroll in Medicare Part B during your open enrollment period at 65.* If you do, you don't have to worry about health conditions you have now.

Find out more with a simple phone call.

Still have questions about AARP Medicare Supplement Insurance Plans? Call a helpful Representative. You have to be an AARP member to apply — and you can join right over the phone.
